For instance, a mojo bag designed for financial prosperity might contain coins, cinnamon sticks (for attraction), and green aventurine (a crystal associated with prosperity). A mojo bag for security could include iron filings (representing strength), black peppercorns (for warding off negative energy), and a piece of used clothing from the individual it's intended to protect. These are only illustrations; the combinations are virtually limitless, reflecting the range and adaptability of Hoodoo traditions.

Using a mojo bag involves carrying it upon your person, keeping it in a protected place, or concealing it in a particular location – all dependent on its objective. It's not merely a passive charm; it requires energetic participation. Regularly energizing the bag with focused intention and prayer can strengthen its power. This act of confirmation establishes a continuous flow of energy between the practitioner and the mojo bag, amplifying its effectiveness.
